WAGING WAR ON THE CIGARETTE

Borough Authorities with School Teachers Take up Fight against Young Boys Smoking Cigarettes. Put up Posters.

Copies of the new laws regarding the sale of cigarettes to minors were placed in all the public and parochial school rooms of Gettysburg and all the business houses of the town on Friday and to-day by Chief of Police Emmons, acting under instructions of Burgess Raymond and in co-operation with the local school authorities.

An effort will be made to enforce more strictly the provisions of this new law which prohibits not only the use of cigarettes by boys under twenty one years of age but even the having in their possession of the "makings". Boys who are found with either and refuse to tell where they received them are liable to a fine of $5 or imprisonment of five days or both. The fine to the person supplying minors with cigarettes is from $100 to $300.

Last year the local Parent Teachers' Association appointed a committee which visited the various stores of town and posted notices telling of the provisions of the act. No arrests were made but it was believed that the action had a beneficial effect. This year every effort will be made by borough and school authorities to break up the practice which has become very common among the youths of the town. Arrests are promised if the boys continue to smoke and if dealers or others are found to be furnishing them with the goods.

School teachers, and principals of public schools, truant officers, police officers, constables and the burgess are given the right to ask boys the source of supply when they are found with cigarettes and any citizen may lay information for violations of the provisions of the act.

Chambersburg is the town nearest to Gettysburg which has seen any prosecutions under the measure.

NOT DESTITUTE

Fire Did not Work Hardship at First Reported.

Joseph B. Twining states that the plight of Mr. Ammerman who lost a quantity of furniture and clothing by fire at his home north of town Monday night has been greatly exaggerated. Mr. Ammerman is not now and never has been, according to Mr. Twining, in destitute circumstances. He has been provided with another tenant house, and has steady employment at the Twining farm. The loss of his goods in the fire was a hardship and contributions to replace these will be gratefully received. Mr. Ammerman's own neighbors were very quick to tender assistance and, while the help from town is appreciated, it is not deemed as urgent as was first supposed.

Bender, Miss Annie Diehl, and Charles S. Speese. Frank D. Blocher kept tally. The match next Friday evening will start at eight o'clock and everybody is invited to participate.

SAYS WE EXPECT A BUSY SEASON

Western Maryland Passenger Agent Says Gettysburg Hotel Men are Looking forward to a Prosperous Tourist Season this Year.

Charles F. Stewart, general passenger agent of the Western Maryland, has returned from a trip over their resort territory. He visited Gettysburg during the week and has given out an interview in which he says this town looks for big business during the coming summer.

"The summer resort business along the Western Maryland" remarked Mr. Stewart, "is increasing each year, and there is every indication that the approaching summer season will be the most prosperous in the history of all these places. The Blue Mountain House owners are planning extensive improvements to their property, and these plans will be finally shaped up in the near future. The improvements at Blue Mountain will include the erection of a number of bungalows.

"At Gettysburg, the hotel men look for a good season in the tourist and excursion business line. Thousands, of course, visit this historic place every year, but it is expected that the general travel to Gettysburg will be especially heavy this season. The people of Gettysburg highly commend the splendid service which the Western Maryland gave last year during the celebration of the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg and believe that this fact alone will result in increased travel during 1914."

The Western Maryland's general passenger agent declared that the tourist business to Florida is good. He says that the Western Maryland has a number of passengers booked for the railway company's first personally conducted tour to the South on January 19th, and that the prospects for the other tours are exceedingly bright.

SUBMARINE LOST; 16 MEN DROWN

British Navy Tried Hard to Save Buried Crew.

LOST DURING MANEUVERS

"A7" Dived to the Bottom of Bay and Failed to Come to Surface—Divers Fail to Locate Her.

Plymouth, Eng., Jan. 17.—The submarine A7, with sixteen officers and men on board, failed to come to the surface after a dive to the bottom of Whitesand bay during the maneuvers, and all on board are undoubtedly dead.
There were circumstantial reports of tapping by the imprisoned men, which would show that they were alive, but these proved to be untrue.
Salvage vessels are searching for the A7.

The submarines of the A class are supposed to carry enough air to remain under water from seven to twelve hours. As the A7 dived about 11 o'clock Friday morning, the survival of any of the crew cannot be hoped for. Bubbles were seen after she sank and apparently drifted along with the tide, but it is certain that the submarine was not beneath them.

An early report that wireless telephone communication had been established between the parent vessel, the Pigmy, and the A7, were without any foundation. The submarine sank in a hundred feet of water.

The official statement issued by the admiralty briefly announces that while the A7 was exercising in Whitesand bay she dived to the bottom and failed to come to the surface. It adds that "it is believed the A7 is lying four miles from Ramsgate in eighteen fathoms of water."

Two officers, a sub-officer, eight seamen and a number of engineers and stokers made up the sixteen men on the vessel when she went down. It is understood that the submarine was equipped with air locks and safety helmets. For this reason it is the general theory that the crew was overcome by gas.

It is possible that the boat was uncontrollable when she sank through the ballast tank and pump not working. This would make it impossible to empty the tanks when the vessel tried to rise. Another theory is that the nose of the submarine struck the mud at the bottom of the bay.

During the maneuvers the weather was fine and clear and the sea smooth.
Six submarines were engaged. They had finished their diving and tactical movements and had started for Plymouth in a single line, running submerged, with only their periscopes showing.

Commander Tomkinson, who was directing the maneuvers from the parent ship, the Pigmy, suddenly noticed that only five periscopes were showing. He instantly gave the signal for the submarines to blow out their tanks and rise. The A7 did not respond.

The Pigmy then steamed back and saw bubbles, which were recognized as anonymous tokens that something had gone amiss. She signalled to the dock yard and help was promptly sent.
Divers made numerous attempts to locate the vessel, but without success.

LUSITANIA RESCUES 8 MEN

Giant Liner Changes Course to Take Crew Off Burning Schooner.

New York, Jan. 17.—With 1604 passengers on board, the Lusitania came to a halt in a fog 200 miles east of Cape Race, N. F., and rescued eight men from the burning Nova Scotia schooner Mayflower.

Word of the rescue came in a wireless from Captain Dowd, of the Lusitania.
The liner, which is bound for England, left New York on Wednesday, with a record-breaking list of passengers.

The Lusitania was proceeding at twenty knots an hour when the ship's navigating officer saw a glare on the horizon. Realizing that a boat was on fire at sea, the captain changed the course of the liner and made for the boat in distress.

FIND BOMB AT R. R. STATION

Pipe Filled With Powder and Sand Discovered at Vineland.

Vineland, N. J., Jan. 17.—An attempt was made to blow up the West Jersey railroad passenger station here.

Lewis Woodruff, baggage master, discovered a cylinder six inches long and three inches in diameter, loaded with powder mixed with sand, on the platform and leaning against the building in a corner.

Railroad detectives who are conducting an investigation, in testing the bomb, found that it was not arranged "properly to explode. A fuse, the end of which had been burned, was attached to the cylinder.

CCL. G. W. GOETHALS.

Canal Builder May Be First Governor of Waterway.

GOETHALS TO RULE CANAL

Will Be Made First Governor, With Full Control of the Zone.

Washington, Jan. 17.—Secretary of War Garrison submitted to President Wilson his plan for the permanent government of the Panama canal zone.

While the secretary would not disclose its features, it is understood it contemplates making Colonel George W. Goethals, the canal builder, the first governor of the zone, with plenary powers, and would create from the retiring members of the canal commission a new commission to take charge of the ceremonies for the opening of the canal in January, 1915.

Unless Colonel William C. Gorgas is made surgeon general of the army he will be continued with the other members of the new commission, whose salaries are to remain the same, but who will serve only until the canal is opened.

TO STARVE SLAYER BARRICADED IN HOME

Ruse to Get Farmer Who Killed Poormaster Fails.

Mayville, N. Y., Jan. 17.—Edward Beardsley, the Summerville farmer, who for four days has defied the efforts of a sheriff's posse to get him out of his farm house fortress, still holds his own, with every prospect of continuing the siege until forced to capitulate by starvation.

Sheriff Anderson, who commands the attacking force, has abandoned his proposed assaults on the house in the fear of injuring innocent members of the family. Besides Beardsley there are in the house Mrs. Beardsley and nine small children.

Their reported plight led to the visit of J. W. Putnam, overseer of the poor, on Tuesday, and it was while he was preparing to take them to an institution that Beardsley shot him.

A ruse to draw Beardsley out of his stronghold failed. Anderson and his company withdrew out of sight and William Walker and Timothy Van Cise went up to the house to offer to aid Beardsley to escape. Beardsley covered both men with a rifle. Van Cise and Walker kept their hands elevated.

Van Cise went over his plan in detail. Beardsley laughed at him.

"You are trying to get me taken," he said. "Now, you right about and get off my property."

Van Cise explained that he had a bob sleigh at the gate, and could take the woman and all of the nine children and Beardsley and be over the Pennsylvania state line before daylight. "There is no one around here now and we can get away easily," he said.

Just then there was a commotion from the direction of the Summerville road. A horse belonging to one of the deputies had bolted—and the officers were trying to capture it. Beardsley became greatly enraged.

"I told you they were there!" he shouted. "Get off my place before I put a bullet through you."

SAVE FIVE ENTOMBED MINERS

Oxygen Treatment Allows Heroes to Enter Workings After Explosion.

Pittston, Pa., Jan. 17.—Six men were entombed alive in mine No. 8 of the Erie Coal company, near here, by an explosion of gas.

Within two hours rescuers, wearing oxygen helmets, rescued five of the miners in a critical condition. One is still missing.

Part of the town of Pittston is directly above that part of the mine where the explosion occurred, and many buildings were shaken.

The explosion occurred a mile and a half from the shaft, and members of the rescue party risked their lives at every step they took, as the walls are threatening to fall at any time.

SAY WOMAN BADE HIM SHOOT MAN

Youth Charged With Attempt to Kill Jersey Lumber Head.

MYSTERY TWO YEARS OLD

He Was Asked to Hire Assassin, and When Unable to Find One Did the Trick Himself.

Somerville, N. J., Jan. 17.—After being held in the Somerset county jail here for twenty-four hours "on information and belief" that on Nov. 20, 1911, he had shot and attempted to kill Monroe F. Ellis, president of the New Jersey Lumber Dealers' association, Paul Carl, a frail young man of twenty-one years, was taken to the Somerset courthouse and put through the third degree in County Prosecutor Pope's office until he finally broke down and made a confession.

Prosecutor Pope gave out a statement of the alleged confession, in which he stated that Carl was induced to believe that Mr. Ellis had maltreat-ed a woman who was near and dear to him.

In the light of recent events, however, said Prosecutor Pope, it may be stated that this was but a subterfuge and was not founded on facts, nor was it ever intended by any of the parties involved in the conspiracy that this young boy should himself carry out the design.

While he was working in Jersey City he met a certain woman by appointment, and she asked him to hire somebody to kill Ellis, saying that she would pay $500 to have this done. Paul made numerous efforts to obtain some man of this class to perform this service, but without success.

"He tells me," said the prosecutor,
"they refused to do business with him because he could not show the money." Carl next went to Bernardsville and hung around the Ellis residence. He saw Ellis through the window, the curtain being up, sitting at the table, and there shot him.

After the shooting Carl made his escape to Millington, N. J., where he boarded a passenger train and went to Hoboken. He went to his home in Stroudsburg, Pa., but returned to Bernardsville about six weeks later and obtained a position in the office of Ellis, where he remained for some time.

It is stated that the alleged conspirators in the case are relatives of Ellis, but that they will escape punishment because of the statute of limitation, which fixes two years as the length of time in which action can be brought on offenders in a case of this kind.

Ellis was wounded by a charge of bullet fired through the window as he sat at dinner in his home at Basking Ridge, N. J., on Nov. 20, 1911. For the arrest of his would-be assassin he offered a reward of $1000, which still stands. Volunteer posses scoured the countryside at the time, but without success.

ers were slightly hurt. The accident occurred on a bridge between Sunbury and Northumberland.

Katzman, an artilleryman station-for this feat among military aviators in the United States.

The aviator, who is a novice in training at an aviation school, was flying about 2000 feet above Fort Wadsworth, on Staten Island, when his machine turned over and dropped 500 feet. Katzman stuck to his seat, and in righting the machine made a complete loop. He landed unhurt, but confused.

JAILED FOR KILLING PROTECTED ELK

40 Gallons of Pickled Meat Found in His House.

Belleville, Pa., Jan. 17.—Perry Hoover, of Penn township, was lodged in the Center county jail for killing one of the elk on the Center county game preserve.

An anonymous writer notified the state game commissioners that two of more elk had been killed recently.
Game wardens were sent to that locality, and when they searched Hoover's house they found a forty gallon jar full of elk meat in pickle. Hoover was taken into custody, and being unable to pay the fines and costs was sent to jail.

A man named Kern, who also killed one of the elk, went before a justice, made information against himself and paid the $100 fine as required in such cases.

The elk killed were part of the flock placed on the Center county game preserve by the state game commission. The wardens are searching for others alleged to be implicated.

JUDGE SAVES MAN'S LIFE

Officer Sent For Tardy Juror Finds Him in Gas-Filled Room.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jan. 17.—Had not Judge S. J. Strauss become provoked at the absence of Patrick Gallagher, of Hazleton, from the jury box when the session of court opened and sent out County Detective James Holman to learn the cause of his absence, Gallagher would have died from asphyxiation in the bedroom of the hotel, where he had blown out the gas upon retiring.

Detective Holman went to Gal-lagher's room in the hotel and broke open the door. He found the gas jet open and Gallagher almost dead.

Gallagher was drawn to serve on a case called for trial before Judge Strauss, and when the court learned of his misfortune the jury was discharged and the case continued until next term. Gallagher recovered and said he blew out the gas.

NEW PLAN FOR REGIONAL BANKS

Present Ten Districts With Philadelphia Center of One.

MAKES PLEA FOR QUAKER CITY

Delegation From Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware Given a Hearing in Washington.

Washington, Jan. 17.—The Philadelphia delegation of bankers, supported by leading financial and other prominent men of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, presented pleas here for the establishment of a federal reserve district in that city.

An entirely new plan of dividing the continental United States into ten federal reserve districts, with Philadelphia as the third city headquarters, was embodied in a report submitted by Levi L. Rue, president of the Philadelphia National bank and chairman of the committee of five bankers sent to Washington by the Clearing House association.

The districts, as suggested, would have regional bank headquarters as follows:

District No. 1, Boston; No. 2, New York; No. 3, Philadelphia; No. 4, Atlanta; No. 5, Chicago; No. 6, St. Louis; No. 7, New Orleans; No. 8, Minneapolis; No. 9, Denver; No. 10, San Francisco.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and Secretary of Agriculture Houston, comprising the reserve bank organization committee, which is to designate from eight to twelve reserve cities under the provisions of the new currency act, heard the visitors at the treasury department.

The entire delegations from Delaware, Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey took the stand in Philadelphia's behalf. Governor Charles R. Miller, of Delaware, endorsed all that Mr. Rue had said and declared that the sentiment for Philadelphia represented the attitude of nearly all Delaware financial institutions, most of which discount everything with Philadelphia.

After the session Mr. Rue said: "Unless they violate all banking and national conditions and the spirit of the new law, I don't see how they can overlook Philadelphia for one of the reserve bank districts."

"Banks of Philadelphia have the accounts of business firms and corporations outside the city represented by mills in the south, manufacturing concerns of the middle west, wholesale and jobbing firms and corporations in dry goods, hardware, groceries, harvesting machinery and other staple products."

"The total accommodations granted in these concerns by the banks of Philadelphia will aggregate $50,000,000. There are likewise 4000 banks from every state in the Union, keeping accounts in Philadelphia."

Mr. Rue drew attention to Pennsylvania as the producer of 47 per cent of all the coal mined in the United States, and emphasized also that three-fifths of all the cotton yarn produced and marketed by southern mills is bought and distributed by Philadelphia wholesale firms to the extent of $45,000,000 annually.

He detailed the city's important dealings with other sections as to iron ore, steel, timber, leather, raw sugar, ranking second in sugar refining; tobacco and wool. The enormous import and export trade of Philadelphia likewise was laid before the committee.

Mr. Rue represented the importance of Philadelphia from an industrial, populous and financial standpoint, his report emphasizing the extent of its relation with the contiguous territory of Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey and the Eastern Shore of Maryland, in addition to its extensive banking operations throughout the country.

As he read parts of his report, and submitted a map, on which the United States was divided into ten regional bank districts, Mr. Rue was greeted with questions by both cabinet officers. He answered all points raised unhesitatingly, and in a manner that showed he had prepared himself for the ordeal.

Burgess Wants Salary Raised.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 17.—Burgess Charles U. Disney, of West Fairview, notified the borough council of that place that unless they approved the order for his annual salary of $50 he would resign. West Fairview was incorporated as a borough a year or so ago, and the council and burgess have not hit it off very well lately, according to report.

Two Miners Killed by Cave-In.

Shamokin, Pa., Jan. 17.—Buried under a heavy fall of rock in the Pennsylvania colliery, Charles Magnavase, a coal miner, thirty-five years old, and Charles Wilkerson, thirty-four years old, were instantly killed. Both men were married and leave large families. Fellow workmen dug out the bodies, but both men were dead.

Bank Robbers Get $2000.

Everett, Wash., Jan. 17.—Posses are searching for five masked men who escaped with $2000 in gold and bank notes after holding up the State bank of Granite Falls, eighteen miles north of here. Police and citizens intercepted the robbers and engaged in a revolver battle, but the men escaped.

Is This One Old?

GEN. SALAZAR CAUGHT

One of Huerta's Generals is Arrested in Texas.

Sanderson, Tex., Jan. 17.—General Ynez Salazar, commander of Mexican Federal volunteers, who was driven out of Ojinaga, Mex., by the rebels, was arrested here.

Salazar was found in a train bound for Eagle Pass, where he had intended to cross the river and join the Federal forces at Piedras Negras.

A federal warrant is out for him in the United States for conspiracy to violate the neutrality laws. The Mexican commander admitted his identity and said he had decided to risk arrest in the United States rather than be captured by the rebels.

Recently it was reported from Mexico City that General Salazar, General Pascual Orozco and General Caraveo, Federal volunteer commanders, had escaped from Ojinaga and were making their way to San Luis Potosi, in the interior of Mexico. This report was evidently a ruse to enable these generals to get away. When asked where Orozco and Caraveo were, Salazar said he did not know.

MISJUDGING DANGER. JAP KILLS HIMSELF

Failed to Warn of Eruption He Commits Hari-Kari.

Tokio, Jan. 17.—The suicide by hari-kari of the chief of the meteorological observatory at Kagoshima has been announced.

The dispatches declare that the scientist committed suicide because he had been severely criticized for failing to warn the citizens of Kagoshima of their danger from the eruption of the volcano Sakurajima. He assured them, it is said, that the center of the subterranean disturbance was elsewhere.

The volcano of Sakurajima is still smoking. Dr. Fusakichi Omori, professor of seismology at the Tokio Imperial university, arrived at Kagoshima to begin an official investigation of the disaster.

The people of Kagoshima, many of whom have returned to the ruined city, only to find their houses destroyed, waited with wonderful faith for Professor Omori to give his decision as to the possibility of further catastrophes. He declared there was no further danger.

Many families were separated during the panic which followed the eruption and the highways in the vicinity are crowded with saddened people searching for relatives.

A relief party at Kagoshima reports that in four villages of Sakurajima 1000 households were destroyed and buried in lava immediately after the first eruption of Sakurajima. The burning lava set fire to many other houses and villages on the coast are still burning. The shores are heaped with the bodies of animals.

On Wednesday night additional explosive eruptions occurred constantly. The villages of Arimura and Yokohama, lying between the peaks, were exterminated by the explosions on Tuesday. The victims of Sakurajima lost everything they possessed. They are ragged and suffering from hunger and exposure.

The houses on the island of Sakurajima—those that are still standing—are enveloped in lava and resemble gigantic wasps. The fugitives who have returned are still in a terrified condition and refuse to enter their homes, except to make a hurried hunt for valuables.

Save Cat From Wrecked Ship. Southwest Harbor, Me., Jan. 17.—Having on board the ship's cat, the last living thing to be taken from the wrecked liner Coburn, the revenue cutter Woodbury arrived here from the Bay of Fundy. The cat has been adopted as the cutter's mascot.

Killed by Car Thieves. Sandusky, O., Jan. 17.—Moses Price, forty-five years old, of Lorain, a Lake Shore railroad detective, was shot and killed here by car thieves, whom he was arresting while they were breaking into a car in the yards.

"Gen." Coxey's Lieutenant Dead. Washington, Jan. 17.—Carl Browne, chief lieutenant to "General" Coxey in the march from Massillon, Ohio, to the capital in 1894, dropped on the street here from acute indigestion and died soon after in a hospital.

THE VOGUE OF PLAID FOR ONE-PIECE FROCKS STILL PREVALENT

Plaids and serges in dull dark colors take the lead for the semi-tailored one-piece frock which is still so popular for general wear and for out-of-door sports. Corduroys and velvets are extremely modish for the more dressy costumes. The plaids are combinations of dark green and red, yellow and black, blue and gold and the more subdued of the Scotch plaids.

Among the new velvets and plushes are "Naeryn", a diagonal wool plush, several fancy cut velveteens, printed epingle velours, and printed plush showing tiny colored figures.

Styles are so varied that the only details we can depend upon are the tunic and the sash. Most of the modish frocks show one or both of these. Often the tunic is merely a shaped band of the material applied to give the effect and often it is ruffle about the hips.

The other day on a country road in a western state a farmer with an empty rig paid no attention to the honk for half the road of the automobile. In that was coming up behind him. In this particular instance it cost the farmer $25 to learn a much needed lesson of highway courtesy, for the chap behind him was the county sheriff, who knew what the law governing the use of the highway was.

The men and boys in and near Pendleton, Ore., are having a succession of weekly jack-rabbit drives with a view to ridding that section of this prolific pest. In a drive held recently a thousand rabbits were driven into an inclosure and killed with clubs, firearms not being allowed because of the danger of accidents. These rabbits were shipped to Portland and distributed among the poor people of the city.

A contributor to the Country Gentleman finds that coating water pipes with a mixture of equal parts of petroleum (vaseline) and paraffin wax is an effective method of keeping them from freezing. The two ingredients should be melted and applied while warm to the pipes with an old brush after they have been wiped perfectly dry. An old lamp or torch may be used to keep the mixture in a liquid state. The application of this protective coating to pipes lying entirely exposed on the top of the ground is said to have kept them from freezing.

A farmer of Rocky Ford, Colo., has been making some interesting tests with a view to determining the proper amount of alfalfa seed to sow under conditions prevailing in that section. He seeded duplicate plots with two varieties of seed, the smallest amount being two pounds and the amount being increased for the other plots by twenty pounds. When the last cutting of alfalfa was made he found that both things considered—yields, amount and quality of hay—the plots on which from eight to ten pounds had been seeded gave the best returns. There is little question that the results of these experiments could be utilized to advantage by alfalfa growers in sections farther east, where the rainfall is more plentiful. Of course the suggestion as to using a smaller amount of seed is based on the assumption that the seed used has strong germinating power.

THE REINDEER OF ALASKA.

Reindeer are not native to the Alaskan peninsula, and one of the practical services which the federal department of agriculture has rendered during the past twenty years has been the importation and propagation of these hardy animals for the benefit of the natives of the country. In 1892 171 reindeer were brought over from Siberia and landed on the shore of Port Clarence, Seward peninsula. Up to 1902, when importations ceased, 1,280 reindeer had been imported from Siberia. Statistics published in June, 1911, showed that the Alaskan reindeer population had increased to 33,620, which were distributed among forty-six herds along the coast of the Bering sea and Arctic ocean from the Aleutian islands to Point Barrow. At that time 460 Eskimos were owners of the animals. The natives can only become owners of the reindeer upon serving an apprenticeship of four years, during which interval the number of deer assigned to them is gradually increased until at the end they have thirty-four reindeer that have been given them by the government. Other natives, not apprentices, may acquire the animals by barter or purchase. In the times which it serves the reindeer is cow, sheep and horse in one, furnishing milk, meat and clothing and motor power. When it has served its purpose as a milk and draft animal it is killed and its flesh eaten and its skin used for clothing. The reindeer requires neither shelter nor provender other than that which it picks up itself. In summer its food consists of coarse grass and weeds and the tender shoots of scrubby willows and other shrubs, while in winter it lives on a certain kind of moss which it has to paw the snow away to get at. The average weight of a reindeer dressed at three years old is about 330 pounds. The flesh is of good quality and sells at 25 cents per pound on Alaskan markets. It is thought that with the reindeer increasing in number as rapidly as they are their carcasses will be shipped to the States at no distant date and retailed on the block.

SOME PLAIN TALK.

Professor W. J. Kennedy, in charge of the animal husbandry department of the Iowa Agricultural college, discussed in a recent address some of the reasons why farm boys and girls leave the farm. In summarizing these reasons he states that the chief cause of dissatisfaction on the part of the young boys and girls is that more attention has been paid to stock and crops than to them; that 90 per cent of the boys and girls who leave the farm for the city do so because of the drudgery and isolation which they and their mothers have been compelled to endure. Besides these, he mentions as further reasons the lack of labor saving devices, which is responsible for a good deal of this drudgery; the lack of social privileges, inadequate and misdirected educational facilities, the decadent condition of country churches, and, lastly, the impassable condition of country roads at certain seasons of the year. It hardly need be added to what Professor Kennedy states that this problem cannot by any possibility be corrected until the farmers of the country as a class (and it holds just as true of men who live in town) come to rate the raising of wholesome boys and girls as important a business as growing fat cattle, sheep and hogs.

HEMP AND QUACK GRASS.

Those farmers who have the quack grass problem on their hands will be interested in the following paragraph taken from the last report of the Wisconsin experiment station: "Two years ago Professor Nordgren of the agronomy department was successful in eradicating quack grass and Canada thistle from a field on the state prison farm at Waupun by the growth of hemp, preceded by following the previous summer. Not only were the weeds eradicated, but a yield of fiber valued at $118 per acre was secured. As a result of this success the past two years 200 acres of hemp have been grown by farmers around Waupun and Fox Lake, a large part being placed on thistle and quack grass infested land. The 1911 crop yielded from 800 to 1,200 pounds per acre in certain instances. When an exceedingly tough quack grass sod was not worked the previous season to kill some of the grass, the hemp was crowded out. Lack of fertility had the same effect. To be sure of getting results the land should be fallowed during the latter half of the previous year, manured well and, if possible, plowed just before sowing hemp in the spring."

FRESH WATER OYSTERS.

The economic results which would follow the successful culture of oysters in fresh water would be of the greatest importance, and such a possibility is suggested in the observations of an investigator at the mouth of the Macta river, in Algeria, who has noticed that oysters are still propagating at this point in spite of the fact that the waters at the mouth have become almost entirely fresh as a result of the gradual formation of a sand bar, which keeps back the salt water of the sea. This change has taken place in a period of eight years and while the oysters used to salt water conditions died, their progeny seemed to become accustomed to the fresher water and even attained a larger size than is customary in salt water.

His Method Of Revenge

BY RUTH GRAHAM

Shortly before the breaking out of the French revolution, Ambrose Sinclair, a young South Carolinian, went to Germany, where he attended a university. He was rather inclined to arms than to study and became proficient in the use of the small sword rather than writing theses. Having finished the university course, he went to Paris. His father forwarded him a letter of introduction to Benjamin Franklin, who was then representing the new American republic at the court of Versailles, and young Sinclair was admitted into the society of the court circle.

Sinclair fell in love with Mme. Oerelle de Torcellers, and his passion was returned. Her brother, the Duke of Lascelles, to get rid of the American, conspired with the Count de Beauville, a rejected suitor of his sister, and the two secured his arrest and imprisonment.

Having got the young man into the Bastille, it was not difficult to keep him there, for they gave instructions to his jailer not to permit him to communicate with any one, especially the American embassy. Sinclair remained there for several years, gaining his freedom only when the mob opened the prison by battering down the gates of the Bastille.

One would suppose that he had had enough of the France of those times and would go home at once. When he had been shut up the country was peaceful; now it was a boiling pot. Having been shut up by royalists, he might now dread being guillotined by revolutionists. But Sinclair had only one thought—to find the men who had imprisoned him and be revenged, for he had heard while in prison that Jules de Lascelles had died.

The French royalists were only beginning to get out of France. Sinclair learned that the Duke of Lascelles had been arrested on a charge of being an enemy to the revolution, but the Count de Beauville was still free. Sinclair went to the leader of the revolution of that time, told him how he had been imprisoned on a charge of inciting insurrection and asked that the Duke of Lascelles be liberated that Mr. Sinclair might seek revenge, by fighting him. The request was granted.

The next day a prison official announced to the duke that he might go free. Lascelles, who had been expecting death by the guillotine, was overjoyed. But when at the prison gate he recognized the man he had thrown into prison several years before he turned pale.

"Come with me," said Sinclair, who led the way into a courtyard near by, where two gentlemen were waiting, the one to second Lascelles, the other Sinclair. Lascelles, having escaped death by the guillotine to meet it by an enemy's rapier, fought desperately, but he was no match for one who had championed his corps at Heidelberg. Sinclair played with him for a time as a cat would with a mouse, then with a "Take that for your villainy!" ran him through.

Sinclair next sought the Count de Beauville. He found it difficult to find him, for the count had been proscribed, and the revolutionists were looking for him as well as the man whom he had imprisoned. Sinclair got on his track through information given by one who had seen him in court and supposed him to be a sympathizer with the royalist cause. Sinclair found his man, but would neither give him up to his enemies nor seek revenge or information that had been imparted on the supposition that it was given to a friend. He proposed to De Beauville that they journey together to Belgium, passing as two Americans. De Beauville could not understand why, since Sinclair had him in his power, he did not turn him over to the revolutionists, and why the man he had injured should help him to get out of the country was indeed a mystery to him. However, there was nothing for him to do but to accept the offer.

Sinclair possessed a passport, though of a date several years gone by, as an American citizen. He suggested to De Beauville that he travel ostensibly as his servant, and the two thus passed beyond the Paris gates. A number of times during their journey they were held up by revolutionists, but every time Sinclair, by showing his passport and ordering De Beauville about as his servant, but, most of all, by his cool assurance, secured a passage for himself and his enemy. At last they reached the frontier. They passed the border in the night, and De Beauville slipped away into the darkness and were gathered in Belgium, and there he went. It was not long before one night at a ball he saw De Beauville dancing with the noblesse of France and, going up to him, drew his glove across his face. There was no avoiding a meeting, and De Beauville consented to fight.

The two men met on a field where such affairs were accustomed to take place. De Beauville was a good swordsman, but somehow there was something in having injured his opponent, something so uneasy in that opponent's treatment of him, that the count could not fight in his usual form. Sinclair soon showed that he had the advantage both in coolness and skill and after giving his enemy several chances finally ended the combat.

Then the young American returned to his home.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Thickness and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy", thus avoiding a lot of fuss. While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.
